* Explanation of section 5

1. If you have a document certifying the right to use the residence (e.g. a contract for lease), consent of the owner of the residence does not need to be attached to the notice of place of residence.
2. If you are not a joint owner, submission of details of a jointly owned residence requires consent of all joint owners or their representatives. If the joint owners concluded an agreement regarding the use of the residence, a document certifying such agreement can be attached instead of their consent.
3. Consent of the owner of the residence or a document certifying the right to use the residence is not required if you submit the address of a residence belonging to a family member (e.g. your spouse or minor) or the address of a place of residence located abroad.
4. Other bases for the use of the residence can include, for example the personal right to use the residence as a family member.
